

Searching for a Constant in your life

Everything that physically exists is constantly altering as everything in the material universe never stops its normal cycle of continuous growth, leading to a predetermined maturity, eventually followed by its ultimate demise. This endless evolution applies equally to inanimate objects and animate living creatures, which obviously includes humans.

Thus, everything material has a predictable life cycle however, what is normally overlooked or forgotten within that progression, is that our material universe has no known center. It exists somewhere within the vast expanse of infinity that has neither beginning nor end, and so no boundaries to define its limitless nature. So, how can a material universe appear, containing inanimate objects and biological species out of, and within, what is infinitely non-material?

My books contain an in-depth delineated response to that question, so what follows is a condensed sketch of that response. A material universe and biological species did not, nor cannot, appear out of nothing, so how can non-material infinity transform into what is finitely material? Furthermore, as infinity is obviously infinite whatever its Substance is, is also infinite and therefore constant. As well, that Substance cannot expand outward as it is infinitely borderless. Consequently, any expansion or growth of whatever that constant Substance is must expand or grow inward.

Thus, inward 'growth' or 'expansion' [or implosion] can be viewed as a reversal of what infinity is. As any inward movement will 'concentrate' its Substance, effectively creating borders within infinity. But infinity is borderless and cannot be contained within borders. Consequently, for that reversal to continue its 'inward-movement' whatever the Substance of infinity is, it must separate from that 'movement' to retain its borderless 'nature' or 'constant'. And as a consequence of that 'enforced-separation,' there are now two forms of infinity.

- 1- The borderless Substance of infinity will retain its infinite 'nature' or 'constant' along with whatever agency initiated that Substance to 'move' but is now 'held' within self-imposed and self-containing borders. Thus, being separate from any further contraction, that agency and its constant 'nature' are now motionless, allowing the remainder of infinity to continue its inward converging journey, effectively creating motion around a motionless 'center'.
- 2- The 'moving' remainder is now infinitely non-substantial and outside of the now bordered activated agency, as the energy or essence of infinities Substance, and therefore, devoid of its 'nature' or 'constant'.

That self-imposed separation allows the non-substantial remainder of infinity to continue being 'pulled-together' until it cannot be compressed further. At that critical point, the continuing converging inward movement is blocked: but the pressure to continue that 'inward-movement' remains. And, as with any form of pressure blocked from continually 'expanding' inwards, there will come a moment when the blockage is released by 'expanding' outward.

That imploding moment has been referred to as the 'Big Bang', but it is doubtful there would have been a bang, just an instant reversal of non-material energy into its reverse, material energy, as a neutralizing or resolving response. That reversal of energies instigates the birth of the material universe, referred to as the reverse or inside-out world, which is still slowly growing or 'expanding'. Hence, out of what was originally non-material and infinite, there are now two forms of manifestation.

- 1- A motionless non-material manifested infinite Substance 'constant' and its 'activating-agency' that retains its 'centered' invisibility as it is borderless, even if self-contained within borders, and so cannot be 'seen' or 'held'.

- 2- And a constantly altering finite material ‘substance’ manifested as a material world that has borders allowing it to be ‘seen’ and ‘held’, containing both organic (biological) ‘substance’ and inorganic (non-biological) substance. Also observable is all biological species that have an innate ability to internally ‘see’ and ‘know’ (referred to as consciousness) what the biological form can ‘see’ and ‘know’, forming the mind. That observability indirectly reveals what the Substance of infinity is, as humans are formed from a reverse material ‘substance’ but created out of a non-material Substance. Thus, in some form, humans contain aspects of both.

The aforesaid suggests, that whatever the non-material Substance of infinity is, is also reversely reflected within the material biology. Or, as humans can ‘see’ and ‘know’, internally as consciousness by the information stored and created in the mind through the agency of the human body. The initiating non-material ‘activating-agency’ Substance of infinity, as a blueprint, design, model or pattern indicates that Substance and its ‘activating-agency’, is able to See and Know both as Consciousness and Mind, as humans are a reverse ‘reflection’ of that Substance. Making the ‘activating-agency’ of that Substance a non-material non-moving borderless entity, within self-containing borders, ‘living’ within a bordered material universe, and so, referred to as the non-material First-Manifest within a material world. And as the ‘First-Manifest’ is infinite its Substance, as its nature, is equally infinite and therefore constant. Therefore in some manner, that constant is also non-materially ‘reflected’ within each and every human.

The foregoing is a concentrated summary to demonstrate how a human has the ability to internally ‘see’ and ‘know’ (experienced as consciousness), with all the information for that internal ‘seeing’ and ‘knowing’ mind created by using its biological ability to ‘see’ and ‘know’. Therefore, humans are both a material/non-material ‘reflection’ of the non-material Substance of the First-Manifest.

Thus, our material-biology is formed from a material ‘substance’ created by the reversal of infinity. But is also impersonally embedded (as a ‘reflection’ is impersonal) with its non-material ‘constant’ or ‘nature’ that is personally discoverable, as it exists within all humans. As such, every material human consciousness/mind represents a non-material reverse-reflection ‘substance’ of the First-Manifest, sometimes referred to as its image. Note: that image is not a physical image, as the First-Manifest is non-material, so a non-material image is your non-material spirit-heritage.

The following is written in a different form to emphasize that the ‘reflection’ of the First-Manifest is not just a nice theory to accept or reject, as the ‘reverse’ of that ‘reflection’ can be experienced, which is experiencing the ‘nature’ of the First-Manifest as its ‘constant’. Thus:

The material human body with a consciousness/mind contained-within-a-biological-form ‘reflects’

The First-Manifest’s non-material Seeing and Knowing ‘Substance’ contained-within-its-concentrated-infinity.

The first part of this essay was to demonstrate that a Personal Source-of-Creation exists, and you, as a material personal being, are an impersonal ‘reflection’ of that Personal Substance. As such, you contain the ‘nature’ of that Source impersonally embedded within consciousness. Meaning you have a non-material ‘constant’ preexisting in your life and the ‘nature’ of that ‘constant’ is what subliminally defines the purpose of your personal existence. This is a ‘gift’ most humans do not recognize as existing. Thus unknowingly, that subliminal gift also makes you a personal representative of the First-Manifest within manifestation. Consequently, leaving the gift unwrapped and so unwanted has consequences.

Hence, as the ‘nature’ or ‘constant’ of that Substance is impersonal, and so subliminally and impersonally embedded within an individual’s consciousness, you have the option or 'free will', to use (personalize) or reject that 'nature'. And that choice defines your life. However, that impersonally embedded 'constant' is a 'gift', and if you chose to open it, you will discover a predefined pathway that subliminally imparts purpose and meaning to your short material existence. But, if you ignore that gift, you will discover accountability.

Thus, one of the many perplexing questions most people have regarding accountability is, 'is there life after death'? The quick response to that question is yes. But that 'yes' is dependent upon not only how you act in life, but also how you think: for thought is a 'thing' as much as an action is a 'thing'. And as a non-material 'constant' responds to, or accepts, whatever its nature is, it responds and accepts an action and a thought equally as both are a personal 'thing'. Just because an action is seen and thought is not, does not make them different. They are the same 'thing': with the 'sameness' evoking the emergence of an entirely new vision for personal accountability. And that accountability you can 'feel', requiring no clarification as the 'feeling' defines it.

Consequently, if you extend that 'nature' into the world you effectively are extending the Substance of the First-Manifest into a material world. But if the 'thought' and the 'action' do not align, the result is diminished. Example: two people jump into the ocean to save a struggling swimmer. One does it simply because someone requires assistance, and the other does it thinking of a reward for the action: same action, different 'thinking' and so a different non-material result.

So, if a 'thought' and its resultant 'action' align, and in some fashion 'extend' the 'constant' of the First-Manifest into the world, spirit-value is created. And spirit-value is indestructible as the Substance of the First-Manifest is expanded, making that 'extension' equally indestructible. Consequently, if spirit-value exists, its indestructibility is what is used to 'awaken' you in a new environment after you vacate the one you now live within. Some have referred to this as the 'awakening' of the soul, which is your non-material personal spirit-heritage being 'awoken' in a new body fitting a new environment.

Throughout the ages, many teachers have 'pointed' at the non-material 'nature' of that 'constant' as being the essential aspect of every human. Some people hearing, feeling or interpreting those teachings have taken the 'pointing' and materialized it by converting the 'pointing' into various directional thought-forms, ultimately becoming beliefs and constructs, allowing their followers to 'hold' it. But, as that 'constant' is non-material it cannot be 'held' only experienced. However, with the passing of time, those various beliefs and constructs have matured into diverse religions; with different approaches to the same thing. And although each religion may appreciate the validity of another's approach; they still take their approach as the defining one. And so today, there exists different religions that have created 'borders' on an infinite and borderless 'constant', allowing their adherents to 'hold' what cannot be held. And that form of 'holding' is potential causation for a seemingly endless amount of conflict, referred to as border-wars with humans becoming its cannon-fodder.

Therefore, avoiding being cannon-fodder begins by appreciating you already have an infinite non-material 'constant' impersonally embedded within you, providing you with the 'opportunity' to personalize it. So, discovering the Substance of that 'constant' should become the primary focus in life. But the reality is different as mental and physical survival, along with a plethora of superficial 'playthings' which can dominate personal existence, leaving little or no time to discover that 'constant'. Or, only in times of great distress is the First-Manifest's 'constant-nature' considered, normally instigated by a want, desire or need.

So, this little essay has encountered a quandary. Firstly, normally those searching for the non-material Substance of infinity's 'constant', are using what can be 'held' to discover what cannot be contained by that form of holding, which is obviously problematic: not impossible, just exceedingly challenging. Secondly, most are too concerned about daily survival, as well as being constantly assailed and entertained by numerous superficial distractions, to even begin that search.

Consequently, if you accept the world and its populace as it now is, with no concern about its future beyond personal survival and the entertainment it generates, you would be part of the majority. However, if you visualize a more evolutionary and inclusive future then you will need to discover, or uncover, the non-material borderless 'constant' that preexists within your spirit-heritage. Because within that 'constant' there also preexists an impersonal direction that subliminally illuminates a pathway for a personal inclusive evolution. But to discover that 'constant' you must forgo 'holding' onto restrictive beliefs and constructs. Not eliminate them altogether, just temporarily 'by-pass' them, freeing that 'constant' from self-imposed bonds, allowing it to freely 'shape' how you live your life. So, how does that 'shaping' occur? Or what illuminates a personal direction in life that defines the 'constant' you already have embedded within your spirit-heritage? And if you choose that 'shaping' pathway, you will eventually discover what is hidden in plain sight. The following suggests one method to uncover what is not concealed.

Firstly, as suggested above, you must not be bound by any beliefs and constructs, no matter how good they appear to be: this is not permanent, just temporary. Even though those beliefs and constructs may have provided you with varying degrees of mental, spiritual and possible physical safety, they are also restrictive, as their containing restriction creates 'edges' allow you to 'hold' onto them. But the embedded 'constant' is non-material and unrestricted by any form of border. And so is 'edge' free. Thus, to experience that 'constant' and not just believe or accept it as fact, you need to enter a non-restrictive 'edge-free' mindset to resonate with a non-restrictive edge-free 'constant'. The moment you actually do that one simple action, with true unrestricted honesty, you will experience or see what you have always seen, but now with a new unfettered vision. As there are no longer restrictive (belief or construct) blinkers to limit what is seen. In those experiential insightful moments, you 'feel' the direction of that 'constant', as connectively-personal. And this will feel good, both about whatever action you take by the seeing and about yourself. Therefore the 'constant' can be referred to as the nature of The-Good, as only good results by that form of seeing and doing.

Thus, the 'constant' of the First-Manifest is described as the nature of The-Good. And you have that nature impersonally embedded within your spirit-heritage to use and so personalize, or ignore, because within your spirit-heritage you also have the spirit-pattern of free will. And no one anywhere can interfere with free will, referred to as the Law of Non-Interference. Meaning, you are the engineer of your own destiny. You are absolutely responsible for all your actions and all your thoughts, as thought is a 'thing' as much as an action is a 'thing'. As previously suggested, this is entering into the world of personal accountability and the nature of 'The-Good' forms that accountability by using it or ignoring that nature.

The foregoing suggests that the universal 'constant', referred to as the nature of The-Good, must be experienced to make it personally yours. When you actually connect to that internal non-material 'constant', you have a firm foundation that can flex to meet endless circumstances, as it has no 'edges' to inhibit flexibility. Meaning, that connective experience, no matter how it flexes, never loses its 'shape'. And that 'shape' is what shapes your self-image, forging resilient self-worth, allowing you to withstand all the slings-and-arrows you may encounter in your journey upon this planet. That 'shape' is now your personal 'constant', remaining non-materially unalterable but experientially knowable, revealing a hidden personal-direction in the 'shape'. Thus, by personalizing that 'shape', you become what it is, fashioning a self-image that has a non-material strength 'resting' within unshakable self-worth. Then life changes forever because you now have a personal guiding 'shape', formed out of the non-material Substance of First-Manifest's nature or 'constant', making your non-material existence indestructible.

With that 'constant' steadfast in your daily thoughts and activities, you can re-adopt or reapply those beliefs and constructs you temporarily 'bypassed'. Then you will discover you are now able to use what they contain, without being responsive to their containing 'edges', allowing you to advance them in alignment with the 'shape' of your embedded 'constant', without imposing them upon another nor using them to judge another.

The openness of that non-imposing and non-judgmental position is what allows your new 'edgeless' freedom to naturally resonate with 'edgeless' nature of the 'constant' that is also impersonally embedded in others. The resultant subliminal 'edgeless' connective-resonance is what contains the potential to engage in a heart-centered versus a mind-centered dialogue, allowing 'sameness' to be recognized over 'differences'. In that connective 'space', each individual has the opportunity to encounter the directional-truth contained within the 'constant' both share. And that form of 'sharing' contains the potential for 'sameness' to overtake and subdue 'differences' to where 'differences' no longer control 'sameness'. It is a brave new world where optimism defeats pessimism, positivity defeats negativity, enthusiasm defeats cynicism, and trust overpowers distrust, revealed through an infectious lightness-of-heart that lessens the load-of-others, simply because it exists and endures.

The intent of this essay is to demonstrate that a Personal Source-of-Existence is real. And you have the free will option to engage with the 'nature' of First-Manifest's 'constant' [or not]. No one can make that decision for you. Nor can another 'give' you that connective experience. You must experience it personally, for yourself.
